The educational foundation at Cumberland Lodge was the vision of Amy Buller and others, who were granted use of this historic former royal residence by King George VI in 1947. We support students in higher education and early career researchers by hosting study retreats and educational mentoring including the Cumberland Lodge and Amy Buller Scholarship schemes. We also run our own cross-disciplinary conference and educational programme with a particular focus on ethical and societal issues, and hold cultural events open to the public.

Friends of Cumberland Lodge

What is it about?

The Friends of Cumberland Lodge was set up in 2014 to create a community of those who value and want to be involved in our activities and support our work. By becoming a Friend, your subscription will help provide student scholarships and bursaries, as well as support other projects and educational activities.

Adelina Gavrilă was one of our first Cumberland Lodge Scholars. She has since completed her PhD at the University of Leicester.

"Whilst studying for my PhD I was lucky enough to become a Cumberland Lodge Scholar. This scholarship has enabled me to develop skills outside my field of research. Being a molecular biologist, I don't often have the opportunity to attend interdisciplinary conferences that widen my understanding of issues concerning society. I also gained valuable skills in communication and public speaking which has impacted overall on my study and future development. Ultimately, I believe that one of the greatest achievements of being a Scholar is that it has made me a more rounded individual with a stronger commitment to making an impact on society."
